Ridgeline Venture Law looks forward to expanding its environmental impact in 2019 through a new partnership with the American Alpine Club. Ridgeline will allocate funds to the AAC Research Grant that supports scientific endeavors in mountains and crags around the world. The Research Grant funds projects that support and improve the health and sustainability of mountain environments and habitats.

An important part of Ridgeline's mission as a Certified B Corp© is to support environmental nonprofits and projects that prioritize conservation and protection of our natural resources. In 2018, our Chattanooga office partnered with Green|Spaces, Southeastern Climbers Coalition, and Access Fund to promote environmental stewardship and sustainability initiatives throughout the greater Chattanooga region.

Our work with the American Alpine Club will further this environmental mission and provide much-needed funding to research projects that help us better understand our mountain ecosystems. The grant application period opens on November 15th and runs until January 15th.

If you are interested in learning more about (or applying for) this year's Research Grant sponsored by Ridgeline, please visit the AAC Research Grants page.
