

INVESTING IN THE FUTURE

PUBLIC & PRIVATE SCHOOLS

Education is a priority in the state of Tennessee. In 2010, Tennessee lawmakers passed the “Tennessee First to the Top Act of 2010” and the “Complete College Tennessee Act of 2010.” The new laws enacted measures designed to spur improvement in Tennessee’s educational systems. That same year, the U.S. Department of Education provided $500 million to fund comprehensive educational enhancements across the state, and the Tennessee STEM Innovation Network was established to expand science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM) in public schools. In 2011, the State of Tennessee passed legislation designed to retain and compensate top-performing teachers.

Public and private foundations including the National Education Association Foundation, Benwood Foundation, Carnegie Foundation, Lyndhurst Foundation and the Public Education Foundation have led and continue to lead initiatives for the advancement of education in Hamilton County. In fact, through these initiatives Hamilton County public schools have garnered significant state and national attention as a model for school transformation.

Most recently, Hamilton County schools, the Chattanooga Area Chamber of Commerce, the Public Education Foundation and the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga have partnered to develop the Principal Leadership Academy to help aspiring principals become strong, well-prepared leaders of schools.

The private sector is also engaged in enhancing education. Hamilton County Schools have partnered with local companies and business associations to develop “Career Academies” in which high school students learn academics through business applications.

Hamilton County boasts 79 public schools, 15 of which have active magnet programs spanning fields of interest such as the culinary arts, performing arts, international studies and science and technology. In addition, three new and innovative charter schools are located in Hamilton County.

The Chattanooga area boasts a rich private school heritage that began more than a century ago and includes all girls, all boys and co-ed options. Many have received national recognition for their superior academic and athletic programs and attract students from around the world. The area also offers faith-based schools from a wide array of denominations.

The Chattanooga area includes a large home-school community with a strong information and resource-sharing network. Home-school students enjoy a variety of extracurricular activities and lessons at area locations and other institutions.

DID YOU KNOW?

In 2011, three Hamilton County magnet schools were named among the top magnet schools in the nation. Normal Park Museum Magnet and Chattanooga School for the Liberal Arts were named 2011 Magnet Schools of Excellence by Magnet Schools of America. Chattanooga High School Center for Creative Arts was named a 2011 School of Distinction by Magnet Schools of America.
