

GOVERNMENT SERVICES

ENHANCING THE QUALITY OF LIFE

In 1839, a general assembly met in Chattanooga to establish a city government and charter for the town. The town reached an agreement that seven aldermen would serve as the city's leaders, who in turn would elect the first mayor. Today, the city still benefits from a strong government system under Chattanooga City Mayor Ron Littlefield and Hamilton County Mayor Jim Coppinger.

Throughout the Chattanooga area, government services enhance the quality of life. Among many services offered are local libraries, garbage collection, recycling centers, recreational areas and federal postal services.

As early as 2003, Chattanooga became one of the first mid-sized cities in America to implement a "One call or click to City Hall." Today, citizens who need to request a city service or report an issue can simply dial 3-1-1 to speak to a customer service representative or visit the 311 website. A companion website to the 311 service utilized by more than 55,000 citizens each year allows residents to request city services and information online. Similarly, citizens of Hamilton County who wish to renew their driver's licenses, obtain a business or marriage license or perform numerous other tasks may visit www.CountyClerkAnytime.com to conveniently handle their business.

Located throughout the Chattanooga area, the four branches of the Chattanooga Public Library provide citizens of all ages with books, audio-visual media, resources for genealogy and other research and special programs. Meanwhile, recycling centers and opportunities for curbside pick-up abound as a result of the local government and area-wide green initiatives.

In addition, public playgrounds, recreation areas, athletic fields, parks and greenways are located throughout Chattanooga and the surrounding areas. Well-maintained basketball courts, tennis courts and picnic facilities are readily accessible, while excellent trails for walking and bike riding contribute to the area's reputation as an eco-friendly, environmentally conscious region.

DID YOU KNOW?

Chattanooga and Hamilton County offer 4,500 acres of parks and 30 miles of greenways with nearly 40,000 acres of state and federal parks in the immediate surroundings.
